The Modern Apprenticeship Group (MAG) – which approves all Modern Apprenticeships in Scotland - is being replaced by the Apprenticeship Approval Group (AAG) from 1 April 2020. This new group will have a larger remit and will be responsible for approving the whole family of Scottish Apprenticeships – Foundation, Modern and Graduate. The way in which Apprenticeship Frameworks are developed is also changing. New Technical Expert Groups (TEGs) are being set up and will be responsible for ensuring that new Frameworks are fit for purpose and reflect employer and apprentice needs. And the content of Apprenticeships is also set to change with the introduction of Meta Skills. This session will provide an overview of developments to date – and how they may impact on training providers Stuart McKenna, Chief Executive, STF
11.00	Scotland's Apprentice Network Scotland's Apprentice Network (SAN) is open to all apprentices past and present – and gives them the opportunity to: • Promote apprenticeships through exciting events • Visit schools to share their experience with pupils • Share their knowledge and the benefits of being an apprentice on social media • Talk at award ceremonies, industry meetings, learning events or even at the Scottish Parliament This session will provide an overview of SAN and the benefits of getting involved. Gayle McMahon & Maxine McClintock, Skills Development Scotland
